

Quantum Diaries Blog Guidelines

Commitment, posting frequency

- QD blogger commitment is for three months initially, renewable for subsequent three-month terms at the agreement of both the blog editor and blogger.
- Bloggers are requested to post a new entry no less than once per week. The blog editor will send reminders by email if posting frequency falls below this level.

General post content

- Posts on any topic are allowed, as long as the content is suitable for all ages.
- Please keep in mind when composing your posts that Quantum Diaries is sponsored by the InterAction collaboration of worldwide particle physics laboratories (full list here: <http://www.interactions.org/cms/?pid=1000025>).
- Please also keep in mind when composing your posts that you are the public face of the world's particle physicists.

Scientific and technical content

- Bloggers are required to follow any blogging or communications guidelines set by their experimental collaborations and institutions of employment.

Editing and comment policy

- The blog editor does not approve individual posts before they are published.
- The blog editor does approve comments made by QD readers. Comments made by logged-in QD bloggers are automatically approved.
- If an issue arises regarding a specific post, the blog editor will make every effort to discuss the issue with the blogger and to arrive at a joint resolution. As a last resort the editor reserves the right to edit blog entries without the prior approval of the blogger.